

These neurons might even have favorite foods. Some are only calmed down once we have sugar while others are only satisfied by savory meals full of fats and protein

