

Like a garden, sometimes your brain gets a little messy when cells die and shed pieces.

Microglia are also great at weeding out debris... and they recycle the cells by eating them!

