

You could say that these neighbors are opposites... That Agrp neurons take in energy while POMC neurons turn around and spend it all away

But what better way to use that energy than getting outside and having fun!